On the day when matters were concluded between Richard and Mr. Badger, we were all under engagement to dine at Mr. Badger's house. We are to be "merely a family palty," Mr. Badger's house said; and we found no lady there but Mrs. Badger hevelf. She was surrounded in the drawing room by various objects, indicative of her painting a little, playing the harpa little, singing a little, working a little, reading a little, writing a little, working a little, she was a lady of about fifty, I should think, worthfully dressed, and of a very fine complexion. If I add, to the little list of her accomplishments, that she outged a little, I do not near that there was any parts in it.

"You would hardly suppose that I am Mrs.

Being the Professor's sole companion in his botanical excursions, I almost topot that I had ever been allocat, and became spite learned. It is singular that the Professor was the Antipodes of Captain Swosser, and that Mr. Badger is not in the least like either."

We then passed into a narrative of the deaths of Captain Swosser and Professor Dingo, both of whom seemed to have had very bad complaints. In the course of it, Mrs. Badger signified that she had never madly loved but once; and that the object of than wild affection, never to be recalled in the fresh enthusiasm, was Captain Swosser. The trofessor was yet dying by inchee, in the most diseast manner, and Mrs. Badger was giving us minimized of his way of saying, with great difficulty, "Where is Laura? 1 told her, laughingly, why, I had known that too, just as well as I had known the other! And we sat before the Sir, and I had all the talking to myself for a little while (though there was not much of it); and Ada was soon quiet and happy. "Do you think my consin John knows, dear Dame Durden I "I should think my consin John knows pretty well as much as we know."

"We want to speak to him before Richard goes," said Ada, thindly, "and we wanted you to advise us, and to tell him so. Perhaps you wouldn't mind Richard's coming in, Dame Durden ?"

"O! Richard is outside, is he, my dear?" said I.

a bashful simplicity that would rated and lighter if she had not won it long before; "but I think he's waiting at the door."

There he was, of course. They brought a chair on either side of me, and put me between them and really seemed to have fillen in love with me instead of one another; they were so confiding, and so transful, and so fond of me. They went on in their own wild way for a little while—I had not the slightest inclimation to stop them; I genjoyed it too much myself—and then we gradually fell to considering how young they were, and how there must be a lapse of several years before this sardy love could come to anything, and how it could come to happiness only if it were read and lasting, and inspired them with a steady resolution to do their duty to each other, with constancy, fortitude, and perseverance: each always for the other's sake. Well! Richard said that he would work his fingers to the bone for Ada, and Ada said that she would work her ingers to the bone for Richard, and they called me all sorts of endearing and sensible names, and we sat there, advising and taking, laif the night. Finally, before we parted, I gave them my promise to speak to their cousin John to-morrow.

So when to-morrow came, I went to my Guardian after breakfast, in the room that was our town substitute for the Growlery, and tool him that I had it in trust to tell him something. "Well, little woman," said he, shutting up his hook, "if you have necepted the trust, there can be no harm in it."

"I hope not, Guardian," said I. "I can guarantee that there is no secreey in it. For it only happened yestorday."

"Guardian," said I, "you remember the happyinght when we first came down to Black House?"

"Guardian," said I, "you remember the lack Front?"

"Guardian," said I, "you remember the lack Front?"

House? when Ada was sugged a more room?"

I wished to recall to his remembrance the look he had given me then. Unless I am much mistaken, I saw that I did so.

"Because," said I, with a little hesitation.

"Yes, my dear!" said he. "Don't hurry."

"Because," said, I, "Ada and Richard have fallen in love. And told each other so."

"Already?" cried my Guardian, quite astonished. ed. "Yes," said I," and to tell you the truth, Gear-dian, I rather expected it."
"The deuce you did!" said he.

"The dence you did " said he.

He sat considering for a minute or two; with his smile, at once so handsome and so kind, upon his changing face; and then requested me to let them know that he wished to see them. When they came, he entireled Ada with one arm, in his fatherly way, and addressed himself to hichard with a cheerful gravity.

"Rick," said Mr. Jarndyce, "I am glad tallare won your confidence. I hope to presente "how you confidence. I hope to presente "how your confidence and his presente the with new interests and pleasures, I certainly did contemplate, after off, the possibility of you and your prelity consin here (don't be shy, Ada, don't be shy, my dear!) being in a mind to go through life together. "We look after off, sir," returned Richard.

"Well 1º said Mr. Jarndyce. "That's rational, while many said Mr. Jarndyce. "That's rational, look hear me, my dears! "my lither's place can never be supply again. All the love and duty I could over have rendered to him, is conferred to you."

"Gome?" said Mr. Jarndyce. "Now for our assumption. Now we lift our eyes up, and look hopefully at the distance! Itiek, the world is before you, and it is most probable that as you enter it, so it will receive you. Trust in nothing but in Providence and your own efforts. Never separate the two like the heathen wagoner.

Constancy in love is a good thing; but it means nothing, and is nothing, but it means nothing, and is nothing will without concrancy in every kind of effort. If you had the abilities of all the great men, past and present, you could do nothing well, without sincerely meaning it, and setting about it. If you entertain the supposition that any real success, in great things or in small, ever was or could be, ever will or can be, wrested from fortune by fits and starts, leave that wrong idean here, or leave your cousin Ada here."

"I will leave it here, sin?" replied Richard, smiling, "if I brought it here just now, but I hope I did not, and will work my way on to my cousin Ada in the hopeful distance."

"Right!" said Mr. Jarradyee. "If you are not to make ber lappy, why should you pursue her?"

"I wouldn't make her unhappy—no, not even for love," retorted Richard proudly.

"Well said!" cried Mr. Jarradyee; "that's well est? "Sing remains here, in her home with me.

"Well said!" cried an Jarranyee, that's one said! Sine remains here, in her home with me. Love her Rick, in your active life, no less than in her home when you revisit it, and all will go well. Otherwise, all will go ill. That's the end of my preaching. I think you and Ada had better take a walk."

discard manner, and Mis. Badger was giving us minimized to the serious of his way of saying, with great difficulty, "Where is Laura? Let Laura give me my hast and water!" when the entrance of the gentlement consigned him to the tomb.

Now I observed that evening, as I had observed for some days past, that Ada and Richard were for not then ever attached to each other's society which was but natural, seeing that they were going to be separated so soon. I was therefore not very much surprised, when we got home, and Ada and I retired up-stairs, to find Ada more sitent than a-mal; the I was not quite prepared for her coming into my arms, and beginning to speak to not, with her face hidden.

"My darling Esther!" marmoned Ada. "I have a great secret to tell you."

"Mighty secret, my pretty one, no doubt!" while it, Ada !"

"O no! Dou't! Pray dou't!" cried Ada, very mads startied at the idea of my doing so.

"Yow I wonder what it can be about?" said for prevending to consider.

"It's about," said Ada, in a whisper. "It's about," said Ada, Esther. She has her friend and countries the preventional contributions of the shades and the properties of the prevention of the shades. "And I right, Esther?" said my Guardian, when they were gone.

"Am I right, Esther?" said my Guardian, when they were gone.

"An it is the very said to consider.

"Rick may gain, out of this, the quality he wants was a the core of so much that is good!" said My Jarndyre, shaking his head. "I have said nothing to Ada, Esther. She has her friend and countries the prevention of the shades.

New York, Monday, 5th July, 1852. I sit down andd the rota of artillery, the ringing of bells, and the measured tread and martial music of the soldiery—all commencenting the National Anniversary—to write this letter. It is a delicious day; bright, yet with a thin voil of interposing clouds, and a gentle and refreshing brooze, which adds zest to the universal enjoyment. We which adds assit to the universal engineer. We are rejoicing, as it is meet that a people so happy, so prosperous, and so free, should rejoice, apon their hirth-day;—and, although the public buildings, and the main avenues of the rity, still hear the recumful decorations with which on Saturday that so building and positival the incultural halo of they sainted and received the inanimate body of HENRY CLAY—there is yet enrues, heartfelt, re-joicing, with which, in thoughtful minds, is mingled the pleasing reflection that the emineral statesman of Kentucky was enabled, ere yet he closed his eyes in death, to witness the overflowing prosperity of the land he loved and had so long and ably served-so that even his mortal remains, present among us, seemed to hallow the regueing for blessings and political privileges which he had been so instrumental in vindicating and enlarging.

The manner in which the inneral cort-pe of the great Kentuckian has been received on its passage, is a very striking indication of the affection in which HENRY CLAY was held. In all great cities, indeed, there is always a large class benefited by, or delighting in, holidays, and coger for any occasion that promises excitement and display. But in the reception here on Saturday of this for neral procession, there were other and far deeper feelings displayed—other and less excitable class-es interested. What the French call the Bourwith geoisie, and the English the great Middle Class, and which, in our country of absolute equality of individuals and classes. I hardly know how to characterize otherwise than as the chief industria and business classes of our cities, the store-keep +is, the master mechanics, the active business people, in short in all walks and departmentsall these bore annisral cable testimony of their administion of the man—their respect for his pub-lie services-their sorrow for his loss. The Cortoge, as already said, arrived here on Saturday—always a day of active retail business saturaly—but this Saturday was much more netive than usual, because to be fellowed by two holidays—Sunday, and the ceremonial 4th, the actual, 5th of July. But almost without an exception, along the line of match through Broadorfield it."

"I am very sure, sir," returned Richard, "that speak for Ada too, when I say that you have he strongest power over us both—rooted in respector, gratitude and affection—strengthening overy that it was once the ideal of a nation—the benefice of gratitude and affection—strengthening overy tor of his race-the champion of Freedom;-and exhort them to emulate his virtues, that they may in death receive his reward of a nation's tears. It is thus that, in the hearts of the young, are deep laid the memorials of gravitude and admiration to be transmitted from the living to the living of such a man as HERLY CLAY. The political campaign opens gloriously for Winfield Scott- and assurance of his success becomes doubly sure as time rolls on. There never was a nomination, within my knowledge of polities, that needs less electioneering to ensure its success. It goes by its own intrinsic and irresistable fitness and force. The Locotocos, who, after dishonoring all their own prominent candidates by making them premise before hard all sorre of subserviency to the slave power, threw the whole bit overboard, and felt for a while as if the Locoluce ship was to sink with its chief captains. were so happy, by the ultimate nomination of Mr. Pierce, to escape total shipwreck, that in the first joy of their delivery, they set up a short of gratic fection as if assured of victory,—and talked with confidence of the future. But since the nomination of Western Scott, and the manistakeable demonstrations which it has called forth, in all parts of the Union, of hearty adhesion—these same locofocos begin to realize that, which saved by a floating plant, like Mr. Pierce, from immeoy a normy point, the art of new from having under diate drowning—they are far from having under them a first-rate earl—capable of doing battle with such a man of way as Winfield Scott—and diate drowning—they are no man and search with him, and then the coulearnily shock hands with him, and then the cousins went out of the room—booking back again

SCOTT CLUB. A goodly gathering of the working friends of Scott and Graham was held at the old Post Office room on Wisconsin street on Saturday even ing, to take the preliminary measures for organizng a Scott Club. M. H. Onton, Esq., was called to the chair, and A. J. Langworthy appointed Secty. The meeting was entirely for luciness and nothing but business was done. The necessary Committees were appointed to draft a Constitution and Bules, and to obtain a room for the meetings of the Club. These committees are to

DAILY SENTINEL.

City Matters.

STATUALY, VASIS, &c., &c.-The lovers of the fine arts will be glad to learn that Signor Virtues arrived in the city with his treasures, and proposes to open them to the examination of the public to-morrow; without charge, of course. A public to-morrow; without charge, of course. A lasty glauce at the few articles opened yesterday, warrants us in saying to those who admire the Leautiful forms into which marble, and alabaster and glass, may be wrought, that they will be delighted to call and inspect the Signor's stock to-morrow. A glance at the advertisement in our columns to-day, will give some idea of the variety and quality of the articles to be found, at the store lately occupied by Cowers & Ross; but the store lately occupied by Cowers & Ross; but the store lately occupied by Cowers at Ross; but we have an idea that the great number of our citizens will prefer to call and see for themselves. The articles are to be sold on Thursday, but we appose that if any one-shall set his or her heart upon any particular article, there will be no difficulty in securing it, before the public sale.

THEATER—Mr. Perey's Benefit.—Mr. H. A PLEAY, who has sustained the leading male characters during Miss Drax's engagement, takes a benefit this evening. It is Mr. Pranx's first appeal to the Milwaukee public, and after laboring so assiduously and successfully the past week, for their entertainment, we cannot doubt that the response will be a generous one. The bill for the evening includes the affecting tragedy of "Fazio," and the rapital Vaudeville, "A Morning Call." We have seen no bester acting than that of Miss Dran and Mr. Peany in this last piece. "A Morn" ing Call," in their hands, must become all the MADABE ADOLINE.-Those who are curious in these matters, and who like to study the ways of the mysterious in nature, will find Madame Anon-rus at the City Hotel. She has excited much attention in various parts of the Union. The Bos-ton Post said at the time of her visit to that city: Madama Adolphe's apartments at 49 Hanover to continue to be througed with the gay and besufful of both sexes. Some publicly confess their surprise at her wonderful powers of prediction, some of which are hard to be credited.

RELIABLE CORRESPONDENTS.—The Cleveland Haindealer of a late date publishes sundry letters from correspondents, to show the rising and rag-ing enthusiasm for "Pierce and King." One of these from Spring Prairie, Walworth County, in this State, dated July 1st, and signed J. D. H. indulges in the following fancy-flights:

Figure and King is all the rage here. You may put down this State for ten thousand majority.—
The Democrats and Free Soilers meet at Elkhorn the 6th of July to unite. Our free soil whig paper is going to raise the Pierce and King flag next week.

We candidly advise our friend GRAY to "wait | before he "puts down this State for ten thousand majority" for Pierce and King. He may get a good notion of Mr. J. D. H.'s reliability, andent, when he comes to read the proceedings of that Union meeting on the 6th July between the Democrats and Free Soilers. The way they "united" was curious!

DEATH OF A WISCONSIN EMIGRANT.—A letter from Fort Laramie, dated May 30, mentions the maiden death of Mr. John Whester, who left this city in April last for California. He was killed on the 26th of May by the sudden starting of Mr. Log's team : the waggon striking him on the temple and causing instant death. Scorr Entersian.—Persons coming from there and below on the river, speek of the tremendous demonstrations of enthusiasm which they saw. All along the Kentucky shore, and on the Indiana below and Ohio above, bonfires, illuminations and artillery were seen and, heard, the most cheering evidences of joy appeared, making the very river vocal from shore to shore.

A sun of Erin, a resident of this city and here-tofore an active Democrat, has just returned from a business trip to Tonnessee. He started on his return house as the news of the nomination of Gen. Scorr uns received, and he says he heard nothing on the way but huzzas for the Hero of a Hundred Rattles and the rear of cannon, and saw nothing that flags, hanners and illuminations. He declares that he never before saw any thing equalling the enthusiasm that everywhere manifested itself anong the people. Can there be any doubt which way the tide runs?—[Syr. Journal.

The Secretatyship of the Navy, Ric.—It is generally understood that Judge Ezekiel F. Chambers will succeed Mr. Graham in the Navy department. Judge C. was member of the United States Senate from 1820 to 1835.

The Republic, this morning contains a letter from Senator Pierce, of Maryland in reply to the committee of the Whig ratification meeting, which fully endorses the nomination of Scott and Graham. He says that if Gen. Scott is elected President, it would add to his long and unsurpassed heiliant life, the crowning glory of the purest fidelity to the Constitution and the country.—The letter pays a handsome tribute to Gen. Scott.

"The way to do business, keep up with the times, and be somebody, is to advertise. And, as a matter of course, the way to run belind hand, sink into absolution, and be notody, is not to advertise. The logic of both propositions is straight and legitionate.

"The man in these days who supposes he lean get along without putting his sign in the newspapers, will wake up one of these fine mornings and find himself the victim of a very big mistake. The matter of advertising is no longer are experiment, but a tried fact; just as much so as the plainest thing in mathematics. He who supposes that the world will hant him up when buried in shadows, while others are dashing out in the broad sun-light, has yet to learn the rudiments of success, penetrate the wind of victory. "The more publicity a business has the noise it is but into people's eyes and ears, the better it will be for the man doing it. Hence in the best regulated and largest fortune-making establishment there is set apart a certain amount for advertising, just us much as for paying bills and meeting notes. The steamer Nimrod, having on board nearly 800 of the scholars and friends of the Universalia Sunday School, who were bound on an excursion, took fire this morning when about a mile from Bergen Point, causing the greatest constenation among those on board. The boat was completly enveloped in smoke, but the flames were finally subdued, and the steamer run ashore. The passengers were rescued by the steamers Passaic and John C. Spiriualism on the Stage.

The Misses Box have actually made an engagement to perform their spirit manifestations upon the stage at Field's theatre, St. Louis!

Spiritualism—the Misses Fox.—The Malager announces that at the suggestion of many friends of the new Spiriual Manifestations and the actual consent of the spirits themselves, as expressed by their rappings, the Misses Fox will appear this evening, on the stage of the Varieties, and, as mediums, afford the public at large an opportunity of judging as to the truth or falsity of supernaturalism.

Western New York—It is pretty early to make predictions in regard to the election but it has never been found unsafe to ruly upon Western New York, in a hard contest, for an overwhelming Whig ungiority. In the Harrison campaign of 1840, the opposition was almost annibilated—We have entire confidence that we shall give a larger majority for the Hers of Chippowa, Lundy's Lanc and Mexico, than was rolled up in 1840.—The enthusiasmalready awakened among the people has sent alarm into the camp of the energy.—Roch. Gen. Scott is vain, empty, proud and silly.

"Nerve's Biog. p. 56.

Gen. Scorr has already been "vail" enough to believe that, at the head of his gallant troops, he could whip the enemies of his country, two to one. He was always too "proud" to surrender; and was never "silly" enough to faint at the smell of gunpowder. As for his being "empty," the People intend to punish him for that offsnee by compeling him to fill the Presidential Chair on the 4th of March next.—Albany Jour.
